I'm 27yrs old, and need some explantion. How is it any different when companies like "AOL" & "Time Warner" merg, and take a commanding lead in their fields. Then now AT&T plan a merger & now are going to take control of the market more then what their competitors had. HOW is it then different then how "MicroSoft" conducts itself? I have no business/law degree, but to me....it just seems unfair. Punish "MicroSoft" for "bullying", but then when other huge companies are doing the same....say&do nothing to them? If your going to make this "fair", make it fair down both sides of the street. I work hard for a living, manage to stay afloat, I could care less what one company does to another.... my point is: Make it legally fair to everyone. Personally, the whole thing against "Microsoft", to me, just makes no sence at all. Why anger the richest man in the world? He now is reaching out into different markets, soon his "XBOX" will eliminate competitors, are you then going to go after him for that? Then after that, then what? From a plain guy in WI., I say leave it be already.
